Temporary Water Pressure Changes – 5200 Area

December 5, 2025 – Iqaluit, Nunavut

The City of Iqaluit is advising residents in the 5200 area to expect short-term dips in water pressure between 7:30 a.m. and 8:00 a.m. over the next week, while City staff investigate an automation-related issue.

At 7:30 a.m. this morning, a brief drop in pressure was recorded, consistent with reported issues from this isolated area. Water pressure is currently back to normal, and there is no indication of a wider service interruption.

City staff are actively working to identify the root cause and will provide updates as more information becomes available.

We appreciate the community's patience and understanding during this time.
